Rabies

What you should know

With the number of confirmed cases of rabies higher than usual in the tri-town area, public officials are warning people to be cautious but not to panic when it comes to rabies. Rabies in humans is rare, but rabies in wildlife is common in some parts of the country. It is fairly rare in this state. Testing at the State Rabies Laboratory finds less that 12 rabid animals (almost always bats) per year. However, rabies is on the rise in the mid-Atlantic and southern New England states. This year, there were three confirmed cases in Mattapoisett alone. There have also been confirmed cases in Marion and Rochester. The best advice is to stay away from wild animals, and keep your dogs and cats from running lose. This is especially difficult for cat owners who don't have to abide by a leash law.

According to the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture, Bureau of Animal Health, rabies is a disease affecting all mammals (if it has hair of fur it's a mammal) caused by a virus which attacks the central nervous system, including the brain. Symptoms may include unexplained aggression, impaired locomotion, varying degrees of paralysis, and extreme depression. After the onset of the symptoms, terminal paralysis and death are imminent. Any mammal, including humans, can contract rabies. There are currently 11 different strains of the rabies virus affecting the United States. A "strain" of rabies is a form of the virus which is primarily carried by a specific animal, known as the dominant reservoir species. Of the 11 strains of rabies in the United States, six are carried by bats, which are found in all parts of the country. The remaining five strains are carried by land animals. These include two fox strains, two skunk strains and the raccoon strain. The raccoon strain has affected the New England area since September of 1992.

Although a strain is specific to a particular animal, other mammals are susceptible to that form of the virus. If an animal other than the dominant reservoir species contracts the virus, it's called spill-over. In the case of the raccoon strain, the most common spill-over animals include skunks, cats, woodchucks, and foxes. The fact that spill-over exist is cause for some concern. Rabies is rare among rodents like squirrels, mice, rats and chipmunks, according to a public health fact sheet from the Massachusetts Department of Public Health.

Vaccination of pets and livestock against rabies can prevent spill-over into the domestic animal population. The vaccination of dogs and cats is required by law, and though this will not necessarily affect the spread of the virus through the wildlife population, it can insure that your pets will not act as a bridge between rabies in wild animals and yourself. If a rabies virus goes untreated, paralysis and death are inevitable. The rabies virus isn't easily transmitted. Normally, the virus is contracted through a bite or scratch from a rabid animal, hence, it's easy to avoid an exposure. The virus live in the saliva and other body fluids of infected animals. It can also be spread if one of these body fluids touches broken skin or a mucus membrane (in the mouth, nose or eyes). In caves crowded with bats, it is even possible, but extremely rare, to inhale the virus floating in the air.

How to Protect Yourself

There are precautions everyone should take to avoid possible exposure to rabies. Here are some ways to protect yourself.

•Vaccinate your pets. The cases which usually present the highest numbers of human exposures involve rabid domestic animals. The most common domestic animal to contract rabies is the cat. None of the cats which tested positive for rabies in Massachusetts had a current vaccination. Ask you veterinarian to be sure your animal has a current vaccination.

•Do not let your pets roam free. Humans are frequently exposed to rabies through handling a pet which has fought with a rabid animal. However, if any saliva from the rabid animal is left on your pet's fur, there is a definite risk of exposure.

•Avoid any contact with wild animals, alive or dead. The behavior of rabid animals is unpredictable. Approaching a sick animal, no matter what condition it appears to be in is dangerous. The rabies virus can be active after the animal dies, but it can only be transmitted if there is direct contact. If you must handle wildlife, wear gloves.

If you see a sick animal, call the local police, they will notify the dog officer. Don't attempt to contain the animal yourself. It's not uncommon for a rabid raccoon to attack anything; people, animals, inanimate objects, etc. Remember to avoid all contact.

Vaccinate your pets

In order to have a valid three-year shot, the dog or cat must have a primary series of vaccinations; two shots, 9-12 months apart from each other. The first shot in an animal's life will normally be given at about 3 months of age , this shot is said to be effective for one year. The animal must then go back for its second shot no sooner than 9, and no later than 12 months from the date the first shot was given. If the second shot is given in that 3 month window, it will be considered effective for three years. Any shot given after that will also be considered effective for three years. Regardless of age, unless the animal has the primary series done correctly, rabies vaccinations are only considered to be effective for one year.

If you have been bitten or scratched by a wild animal, or by a pet or farm animal that has been behaving oddly, follow these steps from the Massachusetts Department of Public Health:

• Wash the wound with soap and water right away for at least five minutes.

People who have never had rabies shots are given six shots in the arm, one at a time over the course of a month. Rabies shots are no longer given in the stomach muscles. The first shot is antibodies to fight the virus, and the rest are vaccine to ensure long-lasting protection. To work best, the shots should begin as soon after the scratch or bite as possible. However, if the animal has been caught and can be tested for rabies, some doctors wait until the test results come back to see if the shots are really needed.

Preventing Rabies

Here are some steps to follow to prevent rabies.

• Avoid wild animals, especially bats, skunks, foxes and raccoons. Avoid any animal-wild or farm-that behaves oddly, and report it to your city or town's animal control officer.

• Make sure your pets are vaccinated against rabies and that their shots are up to date. By law, all dogs should be vaccinated against rabies. Cats also should get rabies shots.

• Fasten trash can lids tightly. Garbage attracts animals, like skunks and raccoons looking for an easy meal.

• Teach your children to avoid wildlife, strays, and all other animals they don't know well.

•It's against the law to keep wild animals such as skunks, ferrets or raccoons as pets. There are no rabies vaccines for most wild species.

•Do not handle sick, dead or injured wild animals yourself; call the police of animal control officer. If you must handle the animal, use heavy gloves, sticks or other tools to avoid direct contact.

•If you are bitten or scratched by an unfamiliar animal, do not try to guess if it's rabid. Call your doctor and local board of health for advice.

•Animal Control Officers, veterinarians and their assistants, and others who have a lot of contact with strays or wildlife should think about getting routine rabies vaccinations to protect themselves before they are exposed to the virus. For more information, call your doctor, nurse, or health center or the Department of Public Health, Division of Epidemiology at 617-522-3700, extension 420 or extension 425.

FINANCING IS WHAT COUNTS

When you're selling a home, it's not the price that counts as much as the buyer's ability to pay. You can have the best house on the block for sale at a give-away price, but it will never sell to the prospect who loves it but cannot afford it – or thinks he can't afford it.

An experienced agency like ours, on the other hand, can be expected to discuss personal matters such as financing with prospects. Prospects will tell our agent freely what they would hold back from you. During such a frank exchange, we have the ability and experience to suggest ways to make buying your home possible for such discouraged clients. At our office, we've saved many sales that both Buyer and Seller thought were impossible.

We can suggest the advantages and drawbacks of 15 as opposed to 30-year mortgages; refer prospects to the bank that's most likely to lend to buyers in their situation; and suggest ways of financing that weren't available a few years ago. It pays to sell through our office.

Mike Handelman's credits include "Love's Labours Lost," "The Tempest" and "Waiting for Godot," (in which he played the title role). Project Grow Applications

A recent mailing, based on town census information, was sent to all families with age-eligible children. The mailing contained a brochure and application materials for the Project GROW preschool program. If you did not receive a mailing, have an age-eligible child, and are interested in this program, you may pick up an application at the Office of the Superintendent of Schools located at Old Rochester Regional High School, 135 Marion Road, Mattapoisett. Priority will be given to applications received by August 12, 1995.

Project GROW, the local public school early childhood program, is seeking students for the upcoming school year. Anticipated state grants, combined with local funds, support the operation of the program. Project GROW classrooms are located at the Center School in Mattapoisett, Memorial School in Rochester and Sippican School in Marion. All classes run for four hours a day, Monday through Thursday, and follow the public school calendar. The program is tuition free. Parents are responsible for providing transportation to and from school each day. Efforts are made to assist parents in forming carpools. Enrollment is open to all children residing in Marion, Mattapoisett or Rochester who were born between January 1, 1991 and September 1, 1992. Preference will be given to children from low-income families and others in need as determined by the Early Childhood Advisory Council. The purpose of project GROW classrooms is to provide preschool experience to children whose families have been unable to enroll them in another program and who desire a preschool experience for their child as well as to provide children with special needs the opportunity to receive service in the least restrictive environment. Each class consists of up to 15 students, the majority of whom are students without special needs. The program is staffed by a certified teacher and an aide. As a family-centered program, parents play an active, vital role in the educational experience through a wide variety of parent involvement opportunities. Home visits are also an integral part of Project GROW. The teacher visits the student's home regularly throughout the year. Families will be notified of student enrollment the week of August 14.

Adoptable Animals

On a happy note Animal Umbrella would like to announce to our faithful readers that our calico mom advertised has been adopted to a wonderful home in Dartmouth. On a sad note, "Lion Face" who was adopted a month ago-also to a Dartmouth home- has been returned and is desperately looking for that second chance. He went to share a home with another older male who just decided that he didn't want a companion after all. "Lion Face" is a gorgeous ginger colored neutered, declawed, older cat who was abandoned outdoors. He is wonderful with people but perhaps better in a one cat household situation. In the kitten category, most advertised last week have been adopted but of course we always have new listings which include a darling ginger colored male with white paws and chest who was recovered from Route 240 in Fairhaven. There are several tigers, both orange and gray, a real sweet buff colored male and three orange tiger females which we rarely have to offer. There are three older kittens to offer this week, one dusty orange male, a part siamese orange and white male and an all smokey gray female with white paws. These kittens are between four and five months. All kittens have been vet checked, wormed, vaccinated

Work Program for Veterans

The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, in cooperation with the Department of Employment and Training, is conducting a program designed to put veterans back to work. The workers involved here have already gone through the first stages of the VA Vocational Rehabilitation program and are ready to work in the private sector, according to Ira Berman, a vocational rehabilitation specialist in the Brockton-West Roxbury VA Medical Center.

The VA is looking for companies to hire such workers. It will negotiate a contract with a company to provide workers at a flat rate, frequently slightly above minimum wage. Companies can save by hiring through the program because the VA handles payroll production, as well as Social Security, worker's compensation, and state and federal payroll tax deductions. For details, contact William Mumford at the Brockton VA Medical Center (508-583-4500, extension 3355), or contact the local Veterans' Officer in the Mattapoisett Town Hall (758-4114).

Compost Bins Still Available

Compost bins are still available for purchase at the Mattapoisett Board of Health office (758-4112). Bins are on sale at the very reduced price of $20, thanks to a Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) grant awarded to the town.

Both types of compost bins are on display outside the Board of Health office on the second floor of Town Hall, along with brochures about composting. Both are rodent-resistant, have openings for efficient aerobic composting and can be easily-assembled without tools. They differ primarily in appearance and capacity: the more compact Earth Machine is better suited to small urban lots, while the Brave New Composter can handle larger volumes of yard waste.

Hospital Benefit Golf Tournament slated for Monday, September 25 at the picturesque Kittansett Club in Marion. The Kittansett course is ranked among the top 100 in the nation. Designed by Frederick Hood, the course opened in 1923. It is a "links" style course, with a layout that depends on the natural features of the land and a constant wind, rather than artificial obstacles, to provide a challenging game of golf.

Co-chairing the event this year are Greg and Nancy Johnson of Wareham. Other committee members are Rosemary See, Marjorie Munro, Diane Perkins, Chris Makepeace, Roland Murphy, Cindy Outhouse, and Sharon Newcomb. Proceeds from the tournament will purchase equipment for the hospital.

A day at Kittansett would make the perfect birthday present. Entry forms and sponsorship information is available by calling the hospital Development Office at 291-3717. The popular event is limited to the first 128 entrants and is usually fully subscribed, so interested golfers are urged to sign up as soon as possible.

The entry fee is $175 per player, which includes golf cart, greens fees, and an elaborate dinner buffet with numerous team and individual
